COVID-19 Response and Prevention at ESG Solutions

Given the current global situation surrounding COVID-19, we at ESG want to inform you of our proactive approach and measures taken to ensure the health and safety of our employees, while reassuring you of the continuity of our services and ability to respond to our valued customers during this period.

While many of our employees are now working remotely, we continue to ensure continuity at the highest quality of critical services including real-time microseismic data processing, equipment manufacture for seismic systems and field services for ongoing operations or necessary site maintenance.

Our HSE team continues to monitor government issued guidelines and advise employees daily. The team has also implemented several measures including:

- Implementing a work-from-home policy for as many employees as possible and ensuring that ESG has the necessary infrastructure and capacity to support employees working remotely;
- Restriction of non-essential travel and adherence of self-isolation practices for employees who have travelled in accordance with local health authority advice;
- Directives around meetings via phone or video conferencing;
- Encouraging those feeling unwell to take appropriate measures to care for their wellbeing;
- Increased cleaning of contact surfaces in our offices while promoting proven measures to limit the spread of any transmission including thorough and frequent hand-washing and proper cough etiquette.

As experts in microseismic monitoring solutions since 1993, ESG is working closely with all customers, suppliers and employees to ensure continuity of services and success of your projects as we navigate these extraordinary times.

ESG remains committed and able to provide exceptional service to all of our clients. We pride ourselves in being your trusted partner to ensure the success of your operations.
